

2021
UNDERGRADUATE ESSAY COMPETITION

A prize of £500 will be awarded to the best undergraduate essay on the subject
All applicants must be undergraduate members of the Society

“How does understanding pathology help anticipate future healthcare requirements”

Essays of up to 3,000 words (excluding references, but including text within figures, tables and legends) are invited to be submitted by any undergraduate medical, dental, veterinary or biomedical student

Format: Double line spacing

To apply please email Julie Johnstone (julie@pathsoc.org)

1. One electronic copy of your essay as a word document - please include the name of your current Institution on your essay

2. One signed copy of the certificate of originality

Please note – your essay will not be entered into the competition without this certificate.

Closing date: 31st August 2021

The undergraduate essay prize of £500.00 will be presented to the winner at the 2022 Summer meeting. Travel expenses to attend the Society meeting presentation are also awarded to UK undergraduates; overseas undergraduates are eligible for prize money only, but not travel expenses. Details of the 2022 meeting dates and venue will be given nearer the time of the meeting

The winning essay will be published on the Pathological Society website (www.pathsoc.org)